THE DIEHL REUNION

Held at Fair Grounds Last Saturday—Large Attendance.

The twenty-second annual reunion of the Diehl families was held on the Bedford Fair Grounds last Saturday, August 24. The weather maker had gone to work Friday night, with his machinery in the best of order, until Saturday morning when he produced one of the finest days of the whole summer—an ideal day.

Buggies, carriages and automobiles carrying the members of the different families and provisions for the picnic dinner, came rolling onto the grounds as fast as they could be admitted through the gates.

At 11 o'clock the president, H. P. Diehl, called the assembly around the band stand and introduced Rev. J. C. Knable of the Friend's Cove Reformed Church, who offered a most fervent and touching prayer for all, and especially for the families represented at this reunion. The good preacher in his earnest way carried the Diehl families to the Throne of Heavenly grace and asked Divine Providence to remember them in the future as He has done in the past.

The president delivered the address of welcome. In this address he recited a great deal of the history of the Diehl families, telling who the oldest are of the different generations. In concluding his remarks, he reminded his hearers of the final reunion from which no one will return. He advised them all so to live that they may be prepared to fully enjoy the festivities of that reunion.

The secretary, A. F. Diehl, next addressed the meeting. He merely wanted to correct an error which he had made in a former speech and for which he had been severely criticised. It seems that on a former occasion the secretary had said: "The Diehls, as a rule, are honest people. It may be that some few are not honest." "Now I want to correct this statement. I want to say that all are absolutely and positively honest. They are not a class of intellectual people but they are honest. There are no lawyers, or doctors, or preachers among them. No, they are too honest for such professions." Mr. Diehl made this ironical speech in such an earnest and sincere manner that he did not so much as smile, while his audience was in a convulsion of laughter all the time.

J. C. Roberts was next called upon and responded in a neat little speech, congratulating the Diehls on the fine attendance, but more especially on the fine dinner he expected to enjoy with them.

Rev. Knable said, "I lived in homes of the Diehls and I can testify to their industry and hospitality." J. H. Cessna of Altoona was called to the stand and told of his relations with the Diehls. Just fifty years and three days before he became half a Diehl, and according to the secretary's statement, half honest. This speaker spoke at more length of the characteristics, qualities that make a people successful and happy, and advised his audience to acquire these qualities, and hold fast to them.

Dinner—and a great one it was—was next in order. All were filled, and enough left over to fill one hundred baskets.

After dinner a business meeting was held at which H. P. Diehl was elected President; T. S. Diehl, Vice President; and Adam F. Diehl, Secretary. Other matters of minor importance were attended to, and the rest of the day was spent in social chats and amusements of different sorts. The occasion was a very pleasant one.

One Who Was There.

Sudden Death of Two Children

George Sherman, the two-year-old son of Harry K. Replogle of Woodbury, died Monday afternoon at the Roaring Spring Hospital, supposedly of poison, taken internally either in food or some other substance. Helen Barefoot, aged three years, a cousin, from Windber, visiting at Woodbury, also succumbed the same day from the same cause.

The funeral services of the former were held at Woodbury Wednesday afternoon, where interment was made. Those of the latter in Windber the same morning and interment at Pleasantville in the afternoon.

DeCharmes Davis

DeCharmes Davis, colored, formerly of Bedford, nephew of DeCharmes Davis of this place, died in Philadelphia on Monday, aged 37 years.

He was a graduate of the Bedford High School and for a number of years has been in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad as Pullman porter.

Attending Friends' Conference

A party traveling in three automobiles left here early Monday morning to attend the Friends' annual conference at Chautauqua, N. Y. In one car were A. C. Blackburn and family; in another Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ridenour, Miss Seckell and Homer Blackburn of Fishertown, and in the third were Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Russell, daughter Miss Irma, and Miss Nora Blackburn.

Automobile Accident

Monday morning Dr. and Mrs. Walter F. Enfield left here with several friends stopping at the Springs. Mrs. William Tod, Mrs. Arrel and Miss Reno—all of Youngstown, O., on an auto trip to Gettysburg, Philip Hughes driving the car. When a short distance beyond Everett an axle broke. Miss Reno had a shoulder dislocated and a couple ribs broken. The injuries were sustained by the lady's jumping from the car. Dr. Enfield's hand was cut by the wind shield. The party returned to Bedford and Miss Reno is confined to the hotel.

Russell, daughter Miss Irma, and Miss Nora Blackburn.

Mrs. Thomas H. Lyons

Mrs. Mary Elmira Lyons, wife of Captain Thomas H. Lyons of Bedford, passed away at Mercy Hospital, Pittsburgh, August 26, 1912. Mrs. Lyons was a daughter of Dr. John E. and Bridget Hayden McGirr, and was born at Hollidaysburg, Pa., March 7, 1845. She was married to Captain Thomas H. Lyons in 1879, and is survived by her husband and son Nicholas, and the following sisters and brother: Miss Annie and Miss Cora McGirr, of Bedford, and Sisters Camillus and Dolores of the Sisters of Mercy, and Frank C. McGirr, Esq., of Pittsburgh.

The funeral was held Wednesday morning, August 28, at 9 o'clock in St. Thomas Catholic Church, Bedford, when her pastor, Rev. Father Downes, delivered an impressive sermon. The remains were laid to rest in the family lot in the old Catholic Cemetery.

Mrs. Lyons was held in respect and affection by all who knew her. She possessed a strong character, and was a loyal friend and kind neighbor.

These words of comfort came from Mercy Hospital in a letter to the folks at home:

"Mary thanks God and everybody for all the care and the many spiritual helps she has had here. Her sweet, gentle spirit never complains, but she has a smile for everyone who comes in, even if she cannot speak to them."

That is a good mental photograph of the brave little woman who has passed peacefully away. She was gentle and kind, just and generous, tender and appreciative. There was not a bit of sham, or pretense, or hypocrisy, or selfishness, or greed in her being. And whatever reward there is in store for the just and honest, this good woman has come into now.

The following relatives from abroad attended Mrs. Lyons' funeral: Attorney Frank C. McGirr and Mrs. McGirr, Sisters Camillus and Dolores of the Sisters of Mercy, Pittsburgh, Miss Ella Byrne of Baltimore, and Nicholas D. Lyons of New York City.

Mrs. Mary Ann Corley

Mrs. Mary Ann Corley died at the home of William Brant, Buffalo Mills, on Friday, August 23, aged 83 years, five months and 17 days. Her husband, Jacob Corley, died about four years ago. One brother, James McCleary of Napier, and three sisters, Mrs. William Brant of Buffalo Mills, Mrs. George Reiley of Scottsdale and Mrs. Jennie Brown of Omaha, Nebr., survive.

The funeral services were held in Dry Ridge Reformed Church Sunday afternoon, August 25, and were conducted by her pastor, Rev. M. C. Flegal, assisted by Rev. E. M. Adair.

Mrs. Corley was a splendid Christian woman. She united with the Methodist Church at Schellsburg in 1869, and was a loyal, consistent member to the time of her death.

A. A. Hibbs

A. Arlington Hibbs died suddenly at his summer home here on Sunday, August 25. Funeral services will be held today at 10:30.

Golf Tournament

A Children's Court Golf Tournament was held at the Springs, on Tuesday in which there were nine participants. Master W. Alfred Sykes of Lakewood, N. J., won the first prize, a silver cup; Miss Virginia Carten of New York, second, a gold pin, and Miss Dorothy Weir of Pittsburgh, consolation, a box of candy.

Automobile Accident

CONVENTION NEXT WEEK

Pennsylvania Electrical Association to Meet at Bedford Springs.

Between four and five hundred members of the Pennsylvania Electrical Association are expected to be present at the fifth annual convention to be held at Bedford Springs on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week.

The organization consists of those engaged in electric lighting, the supply dealers, and the manufacturers of electrical supplies, all of which branches will be represented.

Displays of all kinds of electrical equipment will be made by the dealers and manufacturers. The buildings, colonnade and lawn will be decorated with electric lights.

Aside from the regular program, which includes papers by some of the most prominent electrical men in the state, an extensive program of amusements has been arranged, including dancing, golf, tennis, automobile trips, moving picture and vaudeville shows, and last but not least, a ball game at Northside Park between the central station members and the supply dealers and manufacturers. This game will be played on Wednesday at 3 p. m.

George Ross Feather of East Freedom and Bertha May Crist of Pavia.

Emanuel Knee and Huldah M. Houser, of Cumberland.

Dibert Reunion

On Saturday, August 24, the D(e)iberts of Pennsylvania held their first reunion in the grove at Yount's Station. Members of the Dibert clan were in attendance from Pittsburgh, Johnstown, Altoona, Pavia, Clearville, Snake Spring Valley, Friend's Cove, Reading, besides a large number from Bedford Township.

A family history is well under way and will no doubt be completed before the next reunion. During the day an organization was effected and officers elected for the ensuing year. One of the many happy features of the day was the genuine old-fashioned picnic dinner. A table sixty-six feet long was loaded with good things and the large family that surrounded it did ample justice to the meal. Altogether about three hundred persons were there.

Photographer McCreary from Bedford was there, and during the day snapped a number of interesting groups. Near the grove in the afternoon a game of ball was played between the Imbertown and Fishertown teams. The score was, Imbertown 13; Fishertown 7.

Early in the sixteenth century a number of families left France and settled in Germany and Holland. Most of them near Wittenberg. After residing there several years, time enough to learn the language and intermarry the German and Dutch families, they decided to come to America. Among these people were Chas. DeBere (later spelled Deiber, Diber, Deibert and Dibert) his wife, three sons and a daughter who settled in what is now Bedford Township.

Miller Reunion

The descendants of Adam Miller will meet in their first annual reunion in the Emanuel Miller grove, formerly the Gordon grove, located about one mile east of Helixville, formerly called Millertown, on Saturday, August 31.

The gathering will include the descendants of Katherine Weaver of Hagerstown, Md.; Michael and William Miller, Hettie Shaffer, George, Benjamin Miller and Adam Miller, Jr., all residents of the vicinity of Helixville.

It is requested that those who think they belong to this clan look up their ancestral records and endeavor to be present. It is the desire that as large a crowd as possible be at this first meeting in order to effect a permanent organization and make it an annual event hereafter.

In the morning at 10 o'clock there will be a business session at which it is hoped to perfect a permanent organization and elect officers for the ensuing year. At noon the members of the clan will gather around spacious tables supplied with the fruits of a bounteous season and a general good old-fashioned social time enjoyed.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon addresses will be delivered by Rev. Hayes of New Paris, Rev. Joseph Miller of Westerly, O., and others who will be present on this festive occasion. The remainder of the afternoon will be interspersed with music and recitations. In addition to the immediate relatives, members of the clan by right of birth, all friends are extended a very cordial invitation to be present.

William Kallmann, John H. Miller, H. E. Miller, Burg Miller, Guy Rowzer, Committee of Arrangements.

Saved Child's Life

Edward H. Maugle, express messenger between Huntingdon and Bedford, will be unable to work for some time, as the result of having his hands badly burned Sunday morning. Elizabeth Keiffer was at the Maugle home in Everett, and while playing with a Fourth of July "sparker" her clothes caught fire and were blazing furiously when Maugle ran to her help. The little one escaped with a burn on one arm and a small spot on the neck.

Kidd-Naugle

On Wednesday, August 28, at the Friend's Cove Lutheran parsonage, Bedford, William V. Kidd of Mt. Union and Miss Linnie M. Naugle of Friend's Cove were married by the pastor, Rev. J. J. Minemier.

Williams-Layton

Clad C. Williams and Miss Etta Pearl Layton, of near Everett, were united in marriage yesterday afternoon at the Lutheran parsonage, Bedford, by Rev. H. E. Wieand.

You will be pleased with our neat job work. Give us a call.

Dangers Encountered—View of Glacier—Descent of 6,000 Feet in One Hour and Forty Minutes.

Approaching Dangers

Shoes were wet and leggings too. The steepness of the snow often allowed the knees to strike as one step surmounted the other. The snow took the form of neve and made it necessary to make each foothold safe before venturing another, for one slip would have carried the climbers too swiftly, far below. A noise was heard, and suddenly to the left came two boulders, one of alarming size. They plunged by at a dizzy speed and rolled out of sight. That ever tantalizing "mitten" came at last, when the other boys preferred to climb the rock waste, while I remained on the snow, for all the rocks were loose, and to start one little stone threatened an avalanche. Here they gained on me, however, and in resting on a rock, called to me to turn and see the approach of a hideous storm. No longer could the earth be seen. A dense, white, fleecy cloud was ascending the slope and thunder rolled beneath us. The signal to cling together was given, and with the other strangers hidden from view by the enveloping clouds that sprung upon us, our party gained the northern shelter of the "thumb." Lightning played at will and roaring thunder echoed and reechoed while all of us crouched in a mass behind the rock with an unknown precipice before us. Past this pinnacle dense clouds paced with the wind. Here the stranger climbers joined us, and if a quarrel had been necessary, no better place to duel it out could have been found, beyond the realm of the press. The raging elements surrounding all seemed to pacify the group. Thompson rose with the first sign of clearing, and, as he reached the edge of the precipice but six feet away, a gust of wind rounded the pinnacle and he escaped a plunge into an icy cavern with no loss but his cap that immediately was out of sight.

A Real Glacier

For a spell, the air was clearer, and all rose and approached the brink. Beneath was a mass of ice, to our eyes, without an end; and with a yawning crevasse that resembled the tiger's gaze of hunger glowing with a blue that could not be described; that ran from the depths of green, to blue, to an illusory color of the faintest shading, that at the next turn faded into white. Chum and I had climbed to the very edge of other cliffs in our native state and in the Park; sometimes he the stronger and at other times my nerves were better; but the rift in that low hanging green revealed a sight in the instantaneous death dealing nature of the zig zag fissure, that almost stopped my pulse, and sent cold chills along the veins. A powerful gust of wind could have hurled us all into as horrible an opening and with no more ceremony than sardines find themselves being munched in the cavernous mouth of a Monterey whale. This was the McCloud Glacier, the smallest of the group of five; but which science finds to have been at one time twenty times its present size, but whose crevasses at this time could be scarcely more than 100 feet in a perpendicular depth. From altitudes even higher, Whitney, Bulam, Hotlum and Wintun glaciers surround the peak, carrying rock waste and grinding their beds in proportions that can scarcely be measured. Thus these five cancerous demons are gnawing into the vitals of this aged monarch, with an icy coldness that would not have dared to rest upon its flanks in the days of youth. Here was an example of the reverse of fortune on a battlefield where waged the elements.

The clouds thickened again, and the cold increased, so that with all the clothing brought along wrapped about us and even though huddled in a group, the chill was painful. For more than an hour, the lightning darted about in the clouds that enveloped us, and glad were we indeed that the flying snow was not allowed to pelt us as we hid behind the pebbly rock of pumice stone. After smoking a cigarette, an act most provoking from the view of a climber who would reserve all his energy, the victim, the more sturdy of the party of six, found it best to beat a retreat and soon he disappeared on the slope of the mountain.

Benumbed, after the noon hour, the storm clearing, the ascent of the red rocks was found to be fifty feet instead of two. Known to science as hypersthene andesite tuff, these rocks were anything but solid. The freshly fallen snow made scaling

NO MORE RUNNING SORES

Ed. D. Heckerman Sells an Ointment Called San Cura That is a Positive Cure.

It matters not how old, persistent or poisonous the sore is, San Cura Ointment, the powerful antiseptic, will draw out every particle of poison and promptly heal the sore. So sure of this are the owners, the Thompson Medical Co., that they have authorized Ed. D. Heckerman to return the purchase price if San Cura Ointment doesn't do all this paper says it will do. No fairer offer was ever made. B. D. Dutton, Titusville, Pa., says: "My arm was covered with twenty-four running sores and swollen to twice its natural size. San Cura Ointment removed the pain, drew out the poison and healed the arm in an incredibly short time. It is the greatest compound for healing I ever used." The mighty healing powers of San Cura Ointment are little short of marvelous. It gives instant relief, and is guaranteed to cure salt rheum, eczema, bleeding, itching or protruding piles, ulcers, boils, carbuncles, chapped hands, and chilblains. For cuts, burns, scalds and bruises, it stops all pain quickly and heals promptly. 25c and 50c a jar. By mail on receipt of price, if your druggist is out of it or does not keep it.

San Cura Soap

For tender, itching or irritable skin, wash with San Cura, the only antiseptic soap that soothes and heals, and kills all germs of disease. It will cure pimples, blackheads, and make the complexion clear and attractive. 25c at Ed. D. Heckerman's.

such a wall most dangerous, and all at times lost their nerve. Lines of fear could be read on Thompson's face as large masses of this loose solidified froth came pounding down from above. Pike poles were our salvation, which stayed our unbalanced bodies repeatedly, as the mass to which we clung broke away and threatened to start a human being on a roll two miles in misery. Here another, and the last of the trailing party of six gave up in despair and turned back to find his comrades. All of our party were still together. Hulbirt gained the top of the wall first, and then from above I heard a shriek of terror as a rock came bounding past chum Hoover, and soon he declared his peril in being able neither to retrace his steps or leap ahead. His surroundings very insecure, a call for help, brought Hulbirt's pike pole within his reach and with the repeated courtesy we both reached the top. Loose and slippery footing was again encountered in the mass of loose rocks that here were found at an altitude of about 13,000 feet. The slope was as steep as ever, and the clouds still dense, so that Thompson feared his ability to hold the trail. Here energy demanded a lower gear, and frequent rests. Time was growing late considering the return, and thus no time for lengthy pause was allowed. The party clambered on. As the mist broke away for short intervals, the sights were indescribable. Numbered among the clouds, our foundation seemed to be the Tower of Babel. How any human being had ever ascended this slope on a mule was a mystery, and yet Major Gilbert Thompson of the Geological Survey carried his instruments to the summit in this manner for triangulation. Professor Whitney, after whom the glacier is named, determined the height to be 14,440 feet; but recent determination has placed the height at 14,380.

The guide fulfilled his promise and upon reaching the summit disclosed the zinc box there containing a register. The camera was put into play as an unwritten testimonial of success, a few minutes more were spent in the neighborhood, specimens of formation secured from the "hot springs" or solfataras, the last vestiges of heat that prohibit the classification of Mt. Shasta among the wholly extinct volcanoes, and with a last look discerning storm below, with the guide in the lead, a hasty retreat was beat. The great billowy clumps of clouds that encircled the distant hills, now soaring up or down in columns of gray, or sweeping along in tremendous waves of white, led me to those Pennsylvania hills, where often we gazed skyward and watched them play above. Then we thought it almost beyond reason that there we stood on a plane as high and on a level with the clown riding the top of a pole two miles long, that never would be raised erect in our eastern Keystone town. The red rocks in our view, the splendor left us limp and dizzy as we approached the fearsome precipice with amazement and terror.

The Descent a Climax

On the way up, Thompson had informed all of us of the mode of descent. At the foot of the cliff of rocks, I gladly would have closed my eyes as we took a seat on the snowy pellets that had covered the ascending footprints; but that was out of the question of safety. An instant more and away I found myself on the joy-slide of my life. The longer the faster, past the mitten with a flit, round a curve to the right and then to the left letting gravity have all the speed it could command. What a thrill of pleasure! The cold of the snow overcome by the heat of friction, and the plunge into denser atmosphere invigorating every spark of life, caused us to wish for still steeper slopes that our first experience might be magnified regardless of complaint of clothing. Just how far we had dropped, but no less than 2,000 feet, we could not tell and the distance covered was about two miles. At the first stop, a few photos were taken of the great snowfield and the rest of the party on the slide. The elevation was such that neighboring mountains were still but hills. With the same good cheer, down over the valleys we went, sliding where the slope was steep, running and sliding or using poles to advantage. In the latter, the guide unencumbered, soon led off. Several times my attention was attracted by the bloody footprints in the snow; and alarmed with the frequent repetition of the same, our thoughts were led to the four women in the trailing party that were abandoned in the early morning. Near the base suspicion left me. The tiny Protococcus, which flourishes in the snow, gave the tinge of red when tramped upon. Back we were in Horse Camp.

In one hour and forty minutes the distance that required about eleven hours to climb, had been retraced. Thompson and Hulbirt made haste for Sisson. Hoover and I decided to spend another night under the open sky, twelve miles from any known habitation. With the other boys gone, the perfect silence amidst such wild surroundings, gave us the first feeling of being far from home. It was not fear nor sickness; but a realization. A new supply of wood secured, and camp fire burning, unarmed, we stretched out to gain much cherished sleep that was interrupted shortly after midnight by a necessity for more fuel. Both rose and in the black silence drifted down into the forest in search of wood, without a spark for light. It was a case of feel, alone. Several trips replenished the supply and dreams ensued.

A cheerful morning broke to start us onward. But a few stops were made in the descent of the last twelve miles only to pluck a few of the flowering plants and secure a beautiful cone of the Sugar Pine. At ten in the forenoon of Thursday, our friends, Hulbirt and Thompson, greeted us in Sisson none the worse off for the attempt, and more than pleased with the experience.

At five in the evening two of us were aboard a coach on the Southern Pacific bound for "Frisco;" but holding our eyes as long as we could upon the white sentinel, regretting the loss of its mysterious companionship, and storing in memory an outing the reality of which we never could have dreamed.

CUMBERLAND'S HOME WEEK

Running Races Daily, Aviation Meet, Pageants, Carnival, Mardi Gras.

Cumberland, Md., promises the greatest entertainment in its history, Home-Coming Week, September 1-7, 1912.

The citizens subscribed $15,000 toward carrying through the program. Aside from this, $15,000 has been raised to put on a running race meet at the Cumberland Fair track. This meet will attract some of the greatest runners of the country. There will be six races daily with purses from $100 to $300, the purses for the week aggregating $7,500. These races have been provided so that there might not be a dull moment during the week. The great daily pageants will be held either before or after the races. For this running meet there will be at least 150 horses. Sixty horses will be brought from the famous tracks of Cincinnati, Lexington and Louisville. From Windsor and Hamilton, Ontario, from Latonia and from Gentlemen's Driving Park, Baltimore, and other points will come the remainder to make up one of the biggest aggregation of runners and jumpers ever assembled in the East. A feature of the race will be the famous Starter Brown and his machine from Cincinnati. This will be a decided novelty on the local track. The races alone with horsemen and retainers will bring 2,000 people. Cumberland expects a crowd of at least 50,000. Daily also will be the aeroplane flights. A monoplane will be used. A fight by this make of machine will be entirely new in this section. Thousands of dollars will be spent for the illumination and decoration of the streets and buildings of Cumberland. On one building alone there will be 3,000 incandescent globes. The city will be a wonderful maze of light and color for four and one-half miles. A nightly feature will be the big carnival of 20 high class shows to be provided by Moss Bros. A free feature will be the daily high dive of ninety feet into a net by Joe Maloney, half man, a survivor of the Maine disaster. A dazzling Midway will be provided.

The illumination of the Potomac River-front will be on an elaborate scale. Boat parades and sham naval battles will be arranged. A chorus of 500 voices will sing jubilee songs. Among the attractions besides those mentioned will be parades, pure food show, firemen's contests, band concerts, automobile floral parades, Mardi Gras. There will be something doing every minute. The week will be divided up as follows:

Monday, Labor Day.
Tuesday, Military and Semi-Military Day; prizes $150. Also School Children's Parade.
Wednesday, Firemen's Day; prizes $750.

Thursday, Fraternal Order Day; prizes $150.
Friday, Business Men's Day; prizes $250. This will be the day of the great floral parade.
Saturday, Mardi Gras.

On Wednesday, an excursion will be run over the Western Maryland Railway, leaving Hagerstown at 7 a. m.; returning, leave Cumberland at 7 p. m. Round trip, $1.50.

On Thursday there will be an excursion from Elkins, W. Va., leaving Elkins at 7 a. m., and returning leave Cumberland at 7 p. m. Round trip, $1.50.

On Friday there will be an excursion over the Pennsylvania Railroad.

College Employment Bureaus

There are many institutions of learning in this country that cannot boast of powerful athletic teams or colossal stadiums, colleges that are confined to, perhaps, three or four buildings, but there is not one that has not its student employment bureau. Some of these bureaus are run by the students, others are managed by the authorities, while at some colleges there is close cooperation with the local Y. M. C. A. employment committee. This is the case at Grinnell, where the majority of the students, male and female, are in moderate circumstances and about one-half of them are earning at least part of their expenses. The presence of female students at this college also makes available the employment bureau of the local Y. W. C. A. The bureau at Colorado College, maintained by the authorities, last year secured work for over 150 men. The bureau at Beloit, which is very thoroughly organized and keeps good records of its work, has been able to find work for every one who has applied and some positions have been offered which could not be filled. This is an exceedingly good showing when it is taken into consideration that 73 per cent. of Beloit students are earning part or all of their expenses in term time or during vacation.—From "Working One's Way Through College," by Joseph Ellner, in the American Review of Reviews for September.

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES

They Are Closely Observing Public Health Conditions

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that the reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of applicants do not even suspect that they have the disease.

He states that judging from his own experience and reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has probably been more successful in relieving and curing these diseases than any remedy known. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of cures.

We find that Swamp-Root is strictly a kidney and bladder remedy and we would advise our readers who feel in need of such a remedy to give it a trial. It is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes—fifty-cent and one-dollar.

However, if you wish first to test its wonderful merits, send to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle, absolutely free. When writing be sure and mention the Bedford Gazette. Aug. 30-4t.

To Save Trees of Australia.

None too soon a popular movement has been set on foot in Australia to preserve the gigantic stringybarks (various species of eucalyptus) of that country, which far exceed in height the famous "big trees" of California, and are the tallest trees in the world. These trees sometimes attain heights ranging from 400 to 500 feet. Their timber is exceedingly valuable, and for this reason they have been ruthlessly destroyed by lumbermen.

For The Nervous Woman,

Or the woman who experiences hot flashes nothing is so good to soothe, quiet and calm the nervous system as a pure glyceric extract of native medical plants, and made without alcohol, which has been sold by druggists for the past forty years, and most favorably known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. In younger years some women suffer from dizziness, or fainting spells, hysteria, headache, bearing-down feelings and pain. All these symptoms of irregularity and female disturbance are relieved by the use of this famous "Prescription" of Doctor Pierce.

As a powerful, invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system, and in particular to the organs distinctly feminine. For over-worked, "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dress-makers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, it is an excellent appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

"My disease was called retroversion," writes Mrs. Lydia McDonald, of Meadville, Pa. "I had nervous chills and numb spots and they would leave me very weak. Then I had inflammation and the doctor said I had a floating kidney. I doctored seven months with our family physician. He said I would have to have an operation. Then I stopped taking his medicine. After taking three bottles of Dr. Pierce's medicine I have not had any nervous chills or weak spots. I am better than for years."

"My daughter is now taking the 'Prescription' and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, also the 'Favorite Prescription' and weak dyspepsia. These remedies have helped her ever so much in a short time. We have great faith in your medicines for female troubles."

Mrs. McDonald. Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" restores mild natural bowel movement.

THE TARIFF IN SUMMER DRESS FOR HOT-WEATHER WEARING.

17 CENTS
OR 25?

A fancy wash fabric manufactured in New England for 9 2/3 cents a yard is sold by the manufacturer at 14 1/4 cents—a manufacturing profit of 47 1/2 per cent, less selling expenses of 5 or, at most, 6 per cent. The jobber (wholesale distributor) adds 3 1/4 cents—a profit of 22 1/2 per cent, less selling expenses. The retailer adds another 4 1/2 cents per cent, and the American housewife gets the cloth at 25 cents—cloth that in England can be bought retail for 17 cents, identical in weave and quality! WHY?

Cotton curtain scrim, found in millions of homes, is made in America at a cost that gives the manufacturer ample profit, selling it to the print works at 8 cents a yard. The print works sells to the jobber at 10 1/3 cents, although it finishes the goods at a cost of 1.37 cents. The jobber adds 20 per cent, laying down the curtain scrim to the department store at 12 1/2 cents. The retailer charges the American housewife 19 to 29 cents. More than likely he advertises it as "IMPORTED" and sells it for the top price, because the tariff is so high that the genuine imported goods cannot be sold for less. It costs just as much in England to make this curtain material, yet the English retailer sells it for 15.22 cents (7 1/2 pence) a yard, against 19 to 29 cents under the American tariff! WHY?—From N. ## Facts Suppressed and Issues Evaded by Taft Tariff Board

By ROBERT KENNETH MACLEA
Formerly Consulting Expert of the Tariff Board

Under the pressure of promise to fight chicanery and fraud in tariff legislation, I deem it a public duty not to withhold the facts in my possession relative to the investigation of the cotton manufacturing industry. Regretful that my experience with the board warrants such conclusions, I am compelled to present the following indictment:

SUPPRESSION

public and to the government but intimidated to the special privileges of a few New England manufacturers who were permitted by Senator Aldrich to write the cotton schedule to suit themselves.

PERVERSION

facturers.

That the tariff board has not, as stated by President Taft to congress, drawn any conclusions that would "be valuable in advising the congress and the people" of the changes that ought to be made to make more equitable their (the wool and cotton schedules) effects. The board did not attempt to draw conclusions, "scientifically" or otherwise, by arguing that such deductions as its data justified were not called for under the specifications of its employment.

EMASCULATION

to make head data presented as a basis for intelligent tariff revision

FAVORITISM

That the tariff board falsely reported that it was impossible to obtain abroad cost data on weaving necessary to enable data as were obtained were in some cases suppressed and in others were inadequate for honest comparison, although so utilized.

UNFAIR

foreign manufacturers divulged nothing of similar character or importance.

DISINGENUOUS

That the tariff board has proved not to be the "nonpartisan" and scientific instrument promised by President Taft; that its members displayed inexperience and incompetence and extravagance. Have been forced reluctantly to present a tariff revision in the name of the tariff board which the tariff board has been nothing more than an effective cog in a political machine, that some of the men who clamored most loudly for a tariff board and some of the time appointed thereto worked all the time incompetently in the knowledge that the creation of the board was a scheme to prevent tariff revision as long as possible by "rumormongering" a charge frequently made, but which I for a long time discredited.

PARTISAN

PRESENT TARIFF FOSTERS FRAUD

Domestic Cotton Fabrics Sold to Americans as "Imported."

CHEATING THE CONSUMER

Less Than 2 Per Cent. Comes From Abroad, but Americans Pay Exorbitant Price for Home Goods Because of Deception and Prohibitive Tariff.

By ROBERT KENNETH MACLEA.
(Formerly consulting expert of the tariff board.)

New York, Aug. 23.—The prohibitive tariff, revised upward by the Payne-Aldrich law, permits and fosters wholesale frauds upon the American consumer of cotton goods.

Less than 2 per cent. of the cotton fabrics consumed in the United States comes from abroad, because the protective duties have been made so high that importation is unprofitable.

Yet fully one-third of the cotton piece goods going over retail counters is sold as "IMPORTED" or under names implying a foreign origin.

This deception is generally perpetrated upon the consumer for the purpose of obtaining exorbitant prices for domestic goods.

The consumer, believing the goods are imported and knowing that the tariff adds excessively to their cost, pays 50 to 100 per cent. more than a fair price and does not suspect that he is being cheated.

Drains the Pocketbook.
Let us go straight to a specific example of the operation of this fraud. Take the tariff board's cloth sample No. 56, described as a "printed dimity." This is a medium priced cotton fabric known to almost every American housewife. What woman or girl hasn't possessed a dimity dress within the last few years? And if she went to the cotton goods counter and bought the material by the yard she no doubt saw such signs as:

IRISH DIMITY,
25c.

The World's tariff editor visited with me a department store in a New England city of 100,000 inhabitants and found recently a counter piled with these goods, placarded:

REAL IRISH DIMITY,
19 cts.

We procured samples of all of them. There was not one piece of imported goods in the lot. Investigation proved that the store buyer had purchased these "Irish" dimities from a Boston jobber at 10 cents a yard and that they were made in a New England mill. Here was a supposed "bargain" in a supposedly "imported" fabric, on which the retailer was taking a profit of 90 per cent!

This happens to be a fabric representing the highest efficiency in American manufacturing. It is a class of goods in which we can compete advantageously with any country in the world. The tariff board's investigations discovered on sample No. 56 an American cost of production of 1-3 cents a yard. In all the mills investigated the board's representatives found that the low and high costs of manufacture of this fabric did not vary half a cent a yard.

Who Gets the Profit?
The manufacturer of this American dimity, that is sold as "imported" and "Irish," does not get the excessive profit. In some instances the manufacturer does, but here he sells to the jobber at 8 cents, taking only a nominal manufacturing profit of two-thirds of a cent a yard. The jobber sells to the retailer at 10 cents, a 25 per cent. margin for the jobber.

In Canada, with 25 per cent. tariff, a cotton fabric costing 10 cents a yard would be sold to the consumer at 12 1/2 or sometimes at 15 cents if the pattern happened to be in special demand. In the United States, with its prohibitive tariff, the retail price is always much higher. The standard price retail is 15 cents for the fabric wholesale at 10. But when the tariff is excessive it is 54 per cent. on this printed dimity—the dishonest retailer can "get away with" his deception and double or more than double his normal profit by selling the domestic article as "imported." The retailer knows that he could not buy a genuine imported dimity of this quality from a foreign manufacturer's agent in New York for less than 15 1/2 or 16 1/2 cents, and the grade would retail at 25. He compares the domestic and foreign fabrics and finds the American made is equal in every respect to the fabric from abroad. So he says to himself, "Why not sell it as foreign goods at a price that will make it attractive?"

The extent of this deception is not realized by the majority of manufacturers, but some mills—usually those that have cried loudest and worked most insistently and quietly for excessive duties—have been and are parties to this fraud by labeling their goods or permitting them to be labeled by their selling agents "imported." Sometimes the dishonest middleman is the one who collects the excessive profit from this deception.

Will you pocket it?
In some cases the manufacturer takes the tariff favor for his own pocket. Tariff board sample No. 34 illustrates this. No. 34 is a fancy white goods used for dress wear. Its manufacturer encountered a fair demand for this material during the past season. Table No. 169 of the tariff board's report shows a manufacturing profit of 90 per cent. It costs to manufacture this cloth 12.16 cents a yard. The mill refuses to sell to any one excepting the jobber, and through this channel the cloth reaches the retailer at 22 1/2 to 25 cents a yard. The retailer charges the consumer 35 to 39 cents, according to location and local competition.

For comparison take the value of the fabric on weight. At the manufacturing cost of 12.16 cents a yard one pound of this goods is worth $1.23 as it leaves the mill. When it reaches the consumer (at 39 cents a yard) the price has been boosted to $4.20 a pound.

The manufacturing cost of this cloth in England is practically the same as here, yet the English manufacturer sells it for 15.44 cents a yard, the jobber at 17.26 cents and the retailer at 22 cents.

Bear in mind that the "difference in cost of production at home and abroad" in this class of fabric represented by sample No. 34 amounts to nothing, but the Payne-Aldrich tariff on it equals 55.89 per cent, or 8 1/2 cents per running yard.

Fancy goods of the type of sample No. 34 are products of the Lippitt-McColl class of mills. The Payne-Aldrich bill raised the duty on this cloth from 35 to 55.89 per cent. Is it any wonder that Senator Lippitt and Mr. McColl were interested in amending the Payne bill while it was in Senator Aldrich's committee when such amendments would permit them to take a manufacturer's profit of 90 per cent?—New York World.

"JOKERS" HID REVISION UP

Actual Raising of Duties Effectuated by Payne Bill.

COTTON AND WOOL RATES

Both Indefensible, and President Taft Knew It—Suppression of Facts by the Tariff Board—Statistics Employed to Mislead the Public.

By ROBERT KENNETH MACLEA.
(Formerly consulting expert of the tariff board.)

New York, Aug. 23.—On not a single one of the ninety-five all cotton samples of fabric taken as the basis of the tariff board's investigations of the cotton schedule was there an actual reduction of the tariff by the Payne-Aldrich law.

The samples were selected with great care by the combined judgment of the board's experts, indorsed by the leading jobbers of the United States as being representative of all classes of fabric in use in this country, each sample being chosen because it was typical of the most used material of its particular weave or class. Ninety-five all cotton and five silk and cotton samples comprise the 100 that appear in the tariff board's cotton report.

Forty-seven of the ninety-five in the all cotton class, pay 33.60 per cent higher duties under the Payne-Aldrich than they did under the Dingley tariff. Payne-Aldrich "Jokers."

Of these forty-seven classes of material on which the tariff was increased nine are the famous weaves made in three or four New England mills commonly grouped as the "Lippitt-McColl interests." This is the clique of New England manufacturer-politicians who were permitted by Senator Nelson W. Aldrich to write the cotton schedule to suit themselves.

On the nine Lippitt-McColl fabrics the Payne-Aldrich law jacked up the average duty from 36.57 to 60.33 per cent. In other words, the promised "revision downward" on these goods was really a revision upward amounting to 64.97 per cent. of the Dingley rates.

The remaining thirty-eight classes of all cotton fabrics on which the duty was increased were not generally the product of the favored New England ring. Under the Dingley law these thirty-eight fabrics were assessed an average duty of 35.36 per cent. Under the Payne-Aldrich law they pay 44.58 per cent—a revision upward equal to 26.07 per cent. of the former rate as compared with 64.97 per cent. increase on the manufactures of the favored few.

On just three among the 100 samples was there a decrease in duty. These were the silk and cotton fabrics (silk mills) that pay more than 100 per cent duty. On these three samples the reduction averaged 5.66 per cent on the former duty—a reduction from 116.70 per cent. under the Dingley law to 110.44 per cent. under the Payne-Aldrich law. On one of the silk and cotton samples there was an increase amounting to 21.98 per cent. The fifth of the silk and cotton samples was left unchanged.

On the forty-five of the ninety-five all cotton samples there was no change in duty. On the three remaining samples completing the total of 100, no comparison is made because of apparent lack of authentic foreign prices.

Mr. Taft Was Mistaken.

And still President Taft said in his speech at Boston, April 25 last:

"It (the Payne-Aldrich bill) was a vastly better bill than the Dingley bill. If I had refused to sign the Payne bill it would have maintained the Dingley bill with higher rates than the Payne bill."

When Mr. Taft made this statement he must have known that it was untrue. As for the wool schedule, he knew that the rates were not higher in the Dingley law than in the Payne-Aldrich law, for right after signing the latter bill did not denounce its wool rates as "indefensible?" And, as for the cotton rates of the Payne bill, he knew they were just as "indefensible" as the wool rates, for at the time he made this statement in Boston he had the tariff board's report on cotton before him.

It is true that the cotton report of the tariff board did not make this information available at a glance to Mr. Taft or to congress or to the public. The tariff board carefully avoided giving this information in a gettable, understandable form.

Suppressed the Answer.

"Was the tariff raised or lowered?" has been an insistent question ever since the Payne-Aldrich law was enacted three years ago. The tariff board avoided answering it.

In making my official report to the board I submitted a table that did answer this question in respect to each one, excepting three, of the 100 cloth samples around which our months of investigation centered. After much sidestepping and discussion this table was expurgated and published in its emasculated form. The board's excuse was that it was not its duty to answer the question; congress could make its own computations. The official explanation for refusing to publish the table showing whether the tariff had been raised or lowered was that the market fluctuations made it of no value. This was only a quibble, because the respective tariff acts were so arranged that the increase in duty on a sliding scale kept pace with the price fluctuations.

The tariff board chose to print tables that would show only the assessment of duty under the two acts and left it to anybody who desires the information to figure out for himself the significant facts above set forth.

Benefit Only to Privilege.

From every point of view of the tariff grater it is no doubt highly desirable that such facts, staggering as they are to the dishonest pretensions that the cotton tariff was really lowered, should be buried as deeply as possible in a mass of unexplained statistics. But it is to the advantage of every honest manufacturer and merchant who is seeking stability in business and fair opportunity to make a reasonable profit, that the truth should be made known. Just such policies of official evasion and suppression have made possible in the past the juggling of tariff legislation by and in behalf of the privileged few.

It is undisputed that the cotton schedule as written in the house ways and means committee by Representative Sereno E. Payne of New York did not provide the full measure of "revision downward" that the Republican party had promised. Still it was not until after the Payne bill went to the senate finance committee, of which Mr. Aldrich was chairman, that the "interests" got in their most deadly work. It is well known that Senator Aldrich freely consulted, if he did not actually permit, the Lippitt-McColl interests to write into the amended bill the duties affecting their own products—the fancy weaves made by only a few of the largest and richest New England mills.—New York World.

Taft's administration is in disrepute and from all appearances Mr. Taft is not in the running, but one question which those who are supporters of Mr. Roosevelt must answer for themselves is, "Would the Bull Moose chieftain have accepted the nomination at the hands of the Chicago convention and the platform there adopted if he could have secured it?" One fact to be considered is that he did all in his power to secure it.

ROOSEVELT AND PENROSE

While the war now being waged between Colonel Roosevelt and Senator Penrose is to be regretted, it may result in much good to the nation. Strange indeed is it that the citizens of one of the greatest nations on the face of the globe have to apply the test of credibility of witnesses between a former President of the Republic and one honored with the highest gift within the power of the Legislature of the Keystone state.

Senator Penrose says that in the campaign of 1904 when Theodore Roosevelt was a candidate for President the Standard Oil Company made large contributions to the Republican campaign fund. Colonel Roosevelt says such is not the case; but in amended statement he says that if the contribution was made it was without his knowledge and against his orders. He says that on October 26—mark the date—he wrote Mr. Cortelyou that he had heard rumors of a contribution of the "lubricating" company and ordered the return of any contribution that might have been made.

The voters of the nation will certainly recall that the election was held early in November of that year and, to one who thinks, it is apparent that days, if not weeks, before October 26 the "slush" fund must have found its way into the hands of party workers in rural districts.

Mr. Roosevelt says that he may have been heard to say that his letter would "put the records right," or words to that effect, but that it was written in good faith and he meant it all.

This sounds very nice but if his letter had been dated a month earlier it would look much better now.

A RETROSPECT

Congress has adjourned; the record has been made.

It has done some work, and a great deal of it that is commendable, and it is not responsible for the failure of other legislation to which President Taft would not affix his signature. It was the President who blocked tariff revision that would have reduced the cost of living.

The action finally taken on the Panama Canal bill is far from praiseworthy, for the nation that fails to keep its treaty covenants must necessarily fall in the estimation of the powers of the earth, and the plain wording of the Hay-Ponceforte treaty seems in this action to have been disregarded.

Among the acts to be commended are the abrogation of the Russian treaty regarding passports, the act to make effective the treaty with regard to the Pribilof seal herds, an amendment providing for the election of U. S. Senators by popular vote, an act creating a Child Labor Bureau, the pension act, the establishment of a territorial government in Alaska, a workingmen's compensation law and many others.

The session did work the good effects of which will be felt, but the failure of the acts reducing the cost of clothing, steel and sugar are to be regretted.

THE END OF AN ERA

In Penrose, Archbold and Roosevelt we have true representatives of the Mark Hanna Republicanism which has ruled the country for sixteen years.

Penrose is typical of a hundred unscrupulous bosses who have worn the livery of the Republic in the service of the protected trusts and combines.

Archbold is typical of thousands of rich men profiting by favoring laws and contributing freely to maintain in power the political organization which provided them.

Roosevelt is typical of our smug Mark Hanna Presidents and Congressmen, owing his preferment to the money of Privilege and Plunder and giving official sanction to their plans.

It is only a little while ago that these men, arm in arm, were bullying the people with their claims that they had a monopoly of all the virtue and wisdom in America. Now look at them! Two confess. One pleads ignorance.

Yet everything that they say of each other has been known or suspected for years. Elections have been bought. Laws have been suspended. Lawbreaking has been ignored. Privilege and favor have been placed above right and justice.

Until a little while ago this was triumphant Republicanism as debauched by Mark Hanna. It was a united and harmonious Republicanism too. None but Democrats objected to it, and they were shrieked down by men who owed their official stations to the rotten money of the trusts.

It is money alone that has guided Mark Hanna's party. Under the tariff laws given to it by perjured Congresses it has stolen from the people the money which it has used still further to corrupt the people.

Roosevelt and Taft are in the same boat in this matter. Archbold and Perkins are in the same boat. Penrose and Flinn are in the same boat. They have quarreled with each other, but they have never quarreled with the System that made them what they are. They are all Hanna men still.

There was a Republican party before Hanna which boasted that it had saved the Union and freed a race. Was it worth while to preserve the Union only to surrender it into the hands of Mark Hanna's looters? Was one race emancipated in order that Mark Hanna's shackles might be placed upon several races?

When the Republican party had a worthy mission the fate of the Republic hung more than once on the valor of its warrior citizens. How many of them would have gone exultingly to gory graves if they had known what we know and what, God help us, we all have known in a general way for sixteen years?

Penrose and Archbold reveal only a part. What took place in New York and Pennsylvania in 1904 took place in every Hannalized State in the Union not only in that year but in 1896, 1900 and 1908. McKinley knew it. Roosevelt knew it. Taft knew it. Everybody knew it.

Mark Hanna's Republican party gave government into the hands of contributing corporations and trusts. By these great combinations three Presidents were named, Roosevelt among them. They bought a party and the party basely delivered up to them a people!

The Republican party of Lincoln died when Mark Hanna appeared. The Mark Hanna party of Roosevelt and Taft is dying now.—New York World.

A GENEROUS BANDIT.

The Double Action Trick That Was Turned by Cartouche.

Old time bandits were much more attractive than those of today. There is nothing chivalrous about the automobile robbers of America and France, as there was about such men as Cartouche. Here is an anecdote of which Cartouche was the hero:

One evening he was crossing the Pont Neuf, in Paris, when he saw a poor wretch about to leap over the parapet into the Seine. The brigand stopped him and asked why he wanted to bid adieu to life. The would-be suicide informed him that he was on the point of bankruptcy and that he preferred facing death to facing his creditors.

Cartouche was touched and told the man to call his creditors together on the morrow and they should be paid in full.

The creditors assembled. Cartouche went over their accounts, paid them all, got their receipts and said goodbye to his grateful beneficiary.

It is almost needless to add that when the creditors left Cartouche met them and relieved them of all he had given.—Exchange.

Legend of the Sunken Bells.
Somewhere beneath the soil of Sussex, England, there lies a peal of bells, while in the church near by a solitary bell calls to prayer. In the middle ages, it is said, a certain valiant knight wished to present to the church a peal of bells that should be of use and perpetuate his memory as well, but the vessel that brought them careened on approaching the harbor, and the bells fell out and sank into the mud. Thereupon the donor declared: "Never shall the church have a chime until that peal I give it be dragged from the sea by a team of four milk white oxen."
The oxen seem to have been difficult to obtain. At any rate, the fact remains that to this day the edifice to which the pious knight made his benefaction has never possessed more than a single bell.

Now Paint

Strike when the iron is hot and paint when the property needs it. They paint ships a dozen times a year; yes, some of them, every voyage. What for, do you think? To look nice and get business. A livery keeps its carriages painted and varnished and washed, to look nice and get business. A man, with a house for sale or to let, "does it up," and Devoe is the paint. There's more in paint than to keep-out water. Paint for looks and you needn't think about water. A fresh coat of paint once a year is about as good for his credit as paying his debts. But the man whose buildings and fences look new, very likely, has no debts.

ANNUAL REUNION

Of 55th Penna. Regt. Held at Lancaster.

The 21st annual reunion of the survivors of the 55th Penna. Regiment was held at Lancaster on Tuesday, August 20, in the G. A. R. Hall. The meeting was opened with prayer by Rev. Selwin Houpt. The address of welcome was made by Attorney Jacob H. Burns on behalf of the Mayor, who was absent from the city. It was well received and was responded to by Mrs. M. C. Watson of Indiana.

Indiana was chosen as the place for holding the next reunion in 1913. Capt. W. W. Moore of Wrightsville, York County, was chosen President; Capt. Josiah Hissong of Point, Bedford County, Secretary and Treasurer; Mrs. S. J. Telford of Indiana, Assistant Secretary; Joseph L. Leonard, Chaplain.

A vote of thanks was tendered Comrade James Sweger and his committee, The Women's Relief Corps, also Miss Gable and Prof. W. W. Zickman for recitations and address and the Trolley Line Company for their courtesy in taking the crowd over the city. A fine dinner was served at the Post Room by the Women's Relief Corps, which was enjoyed by all.

The camp fire was opened in the evening, which burned brightly until a late hour. Miss Carrie Gable gave several recitations which pleased the audience. Prof. W. W. Zickman delivered an address on Peace and John T. Fry of Indiana gave a talk on his life in Libby and Andersonville prisons for over a year.

The following comrades were present: Company A, Cornelius Conrad, Robert Dougherty, John Maus, David Bender, John Ehrenfeldt, John T. Fry, Richard Sharpe; B, John A. Matthew, Peter Grimes, George Shaffer, William Manderback, George D. Fahnenback, John Kenney; G, Joseph L. Ettla, James W. Montgomery; D, David W. Prosser; E, Capt. W. W. Moore; F, D. S. Kerr; G, Joseph L. Leonard, James Sweger, Ed. Looker, Isaac Raudebaugh; H, John E. Moyer, W. W. Feight, John Z. Deck, Capt. Josiah Hissong; K, Benjamin Lohr.

The list of dead since the meeting at Ebensburg is as follows: Company K, Gabriel Burket, Isaac Wentz, Theophilus Gates; H, Samuel Adams, George C. Wisel; D, Jacob Burket; G, Roswell Stevens; A, Joseph Rainey Nicholas Seymore, Peter C. Weible, George C. Delancy; B, Benjamin Steffy, Joshua Howe; F, Joseph Fuller and Co. John H. Filler.

Two daughters of the first colonel, Richard White, were present: Mrs. S. J. Telford and Mrs. M. C. Watson, of Indiana. A number of wives, daughters and sons of other survivors were also present.

Hair Dressing Has Won the American People

Since its introduction into America Parisian Sage has had an immense sale, and here are the reasons: It is safe and harmless. It cures dandruff in two weeks by killing the dandruff germ. It stops falling hair. It promptly stops itching of the scalp.

It makes the hair soft, glossy and luxuriant. It gives life and beauty to the hair. It is not sticky or greasy. It is guaranteed to be as advertised, or money back.

It is the daintiest perturbed hair tonic made. It is the best, the most pleasant and invigorating hair dressing made. Fight shy of the druggist who offers you a substitute, he is unworthy of your confidence.

Made only in America by Giroux Mfg. Co., Buffalo, N. Y. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every package. Price only 50 cents.

DIED

GODFREY—Wednesday morning, August 21, Mrs. John F. Godfrey died in Johnstown. She was born in Bedford County on August 1, 1866. Interment was made in Geistown Cemetery.

GEINGER—Monday night, August 19, Mrs. Frank Geinger died at Allegheny, aged 40 years. Her husband and two daughters survive. Interment was made in the Everett Cemetery Wednesday afternoon, August 21.

STANTON—Friday morning, August 23, Mrs. Mary Jane Stanton died in Conemaugh Township, Somerset County, aged 90 years. She was born near Pleasantville, and is survived by one brother, eight sons and four daughters. The funeral services were held in the Hopewell M. E. Church, near Stanton's Mill, Sunday afternoon. Interment was made in the adjoining cemetery.

STORY OF COTTON IS A THRILLER

A Narrative That Concerns the Welfare of Millions.

SHOWS EVILS OF PROTECTION

Whole People Robbed by a Tariff That Rich Manufacturer May Benefit—Robert Kenneth MacLea, Consulting Expert of the Tariff Board, Shows That the American People Are Mulcted of $88,000,000 a Year.

New York, Aug. 23.—Did you ever hear the story of cotton?

It is as thrilling as a narrative of adventure. It is as interesting as a novel—interesting particularly because it concerns the welfare of millions of people who wear cotton goods. It is interesting because it is the dress of the poor, the universal substitute for wool and silk. It is interesting, furthermore, because it is true.

The story of cotton is the story of a protective tariff for the benefit of rich manufacturers at the expense of the whole people who wear cotton goods.

It has been reasonably calculated that because the cotton tariff is fixed by the Payne-Aldrich law the American people are paying $88,000,000 more every year than they should pay for their cotton goods and that a saving of this amount could be accomplished by a reasonable reduction in the present duties.

The story of cotton is told by an expert, Robert Kenneth MacLea, consulting expert of the tariff board, in a series of articles published in the New York World. Mr. MacLea's views are the views of a lifelong Republican, a friend of the protective policy of the Republican party, but at the same time an opponent of tariff graft and favoritism. To this work Mr. MacLea has brought a varied experience, covering more than twenty years, in the manufacture and marketing of textiles.

He first distinguished himself as an advocate of honest tariff legislation by finding the "jokers" of the Payne-Aldrich act, when the agents of a few New England mills were permitted to write their own rates to suit themselves. He was chairman of the tariff committee of the New York Dry Goods Merchants' association and in that capacity conducted a campaign which attracted the attention of the newly created tariff board. To accept the position of consulting expert to the board he gave up the management of the domestic business of the New York firms of R. B. MacLea & Co. and Converse & Co.

The story of cotton is a companion piece to the story of Schedule K—the woolen schedule—declared by President Taft to be infamous and indefensible.

The findings of the tariff board with regard to the woolen schedule were analyzed by Chairman Underwood of the ways and means committee and condemned as inaccurate, incomplete and worthless as an aid to legislation.

When the tariff board's findings on the cotton schedule were made public the World decided to make its own investigation concerning it, and Mr. MacLea was selected for that purpose. The World had the findings of the board on manufactures of cotton dissected and translated into language of the everyday man and woman.

One hundred cloth samples purchased in representative domestic markets were made the basis of the tariff board's findings on the cost of cotton cloth produced in this country. Mr. MacLea used the same cloth samples as concrete illustrations of the workings of the tariff and from these exposed the very generally perpetrated fraud of selling American made goods as "imported" and showed why the excessive tariff permits and fosters this imposition.

Recognizing that the tariff would be a vital issue of the campaign and that controversy would center about President Taft's "nonpartisan" tariff board and its work, the World undertook the investigation of cotton and sought answers to the following questions:

Has the work of the tariff board justified the delay in reducing the tariff and giving relief from the high cost of living?

What have the people gained in the three years under the Payne-Aldrich tariff in RETURN FOR MORE THAN $5,000,000,000 TAXED OUT OF THEIR POCKETS AND INTO THE POCKETS OF PROTECTED PRIVILEGE?

How honestly, impartially and thoroughly did the "nonpartisan" tariff board undertake its task?

Several months before the cotton report was completed Mr. MacLea declares that he discovered sinister influences in the tariff board's working to eliminate findings most damaging to the favored few in the cotton mill industry. Such suppressed information as Mr. MacLea considers to be of vital importance to the cotton industry and the public has been presented in the World. He has also explained what the mass of figures of the cotton report signifies and presented some of the most important of the conclusions to be drawn from that report, a work which the board saw fit not to attempt.

The story of cotton, as written by Mr. MacLea and published in the World from time to time, forms one of the most interesting and important features of the present campaign.

My Career

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

My name is Arietta Hope. I consist of 400 pages, with a good deal on a page. I am of two kinds, printed matter and girl. The girl part is heroine and the paper part is book. But since the heroine part is the living half I consider myself Arietta Hope.

My maker is a woman of thirty-five, an age at which one may be expected to have attained to a correct knowledge of her sex. Yet since she did not issue me under her own name, but the assumed name of a man, Edgar Harding, she is not only unknown to those who have read me, but unless she is betrayed by certain feminine traits displayed in me she is supposed to be Marceline. When my maker had finished me she sent me the round of publishers through the express companies, so that she did not make herself known to them. However, she requested as an especial favor that they would send her the criticisms of their "readers," these persons being employed to read manuscripts and report to the publisher whether each in their opinion would be a profitable book for them to publish. The publishers usually paid very little attention to my maker's request, though a few did. These criticisms were almost always where the "reader" had made some facetious remark about the story. The first one my maker received was as follows:

"Mr. Harding has written a long story purporting to portray a woman. The author must have written the book with a mirror before him. Whether he has portrayed himself or not is not apparent, but certain it is that he has painted a man in petticoats. Arietta Hope gives every evidence of having been constructed by one of the male sex. I would decline it."

Long after the receipt of the criticism my maker made the acquaintance of this critic and found him to be a young man still in his teens.

My maker, having spent two years upon me, at the same time studying different women from whom she drew certain feminine traits which she instilled into me, was much discouraged. If the representative of a prominent publishing house had mistaken her heroine for a petticoated man, what a dreadful failure she must have made! She put me in a closet and looked me up with the intention of never taking me out again. But some one told her that Dodson & Co. were looking for novels—not of the flashy type, but studies of character—and she decided to submit me to them. So I was sent by express, a letter going by mail begging the firm to give her some idea of the merits and demerits—especially the latter—of the story. The manuscript was returned to her, accompanied by a letter, in which the writer courteously explained to her that more than 90 per cent of the novels published were read by women. Women required stories that showed the feminine touch. Mr. Harding had shown high literary excellence, but he had not succeeded in portraying a woman.

My maker determined that when she sent me out again she would adopt a feminine nom de plume. She made a new title page, with Edith Granger on it instead of Edgar Harding, and dispatched me to the Parkington Publishing company. She was again successful in eliciting a courteous reply, which included the reader's report. It was as follows:

"The author has given a picture of a woman who is sure to antagonize her own sex. Arietta Hope is altogether too feminine for a heroine. In reading about her we would surmise, did we not know to the contrary, that she had been drawn by a man, so many of those volatile traits common to women are found in her—traits that men love to ridicule."

"Good gracious!" exclaimed my maker when she read this. "Then I've jumped from the frying pan into the fire!"

My maker determined upon one more effort, and if that failed she was resolved to burn me. She sent me to Littleton Brothers. Within a few days she received a letter from the firm stating bluntly that they would not care to publish me at their own risk, but if she would pay the cost of publication they would put their imprint on the title page of the book, publishing it as their own.

My maker having all a woman's curiosity, desiring to discover who was right about the book, accepted the conditions. She sent the publishers a check, and they published me.

I was a long while getting before the public, but I succeeded in the end. Certain men recommended me because they said I was a man's woman, and certain women spoke well of me because they said I was a woman's woman. This at last gave me a start, and as I pleased both men and women I took in all there was except the children. Anyway, I kept growing and growing in popular favor till I was pronounced what publishers call "phenomenal."

Littleton Brothers were very angry because they must pay a larger royalty than usual, having published me for my author instead of themselves. Nevertheless, they made a fortune out of me, and when congratulated on their foresight they look wise and say nothing. I am now in my fourth hundred thousand, and the demand for me continues. My maker has built a country place, where she has retired, spending much of her time in declining requests of publishers that she write for them.

Lesson IX.—Third Quarter, For Sept. 1, 1912.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Mark vi, 14-29. Memory Verses, 27, 28—Golden Text, Rev. ii, 10 (R. V.)—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

This lesson is a look backward to the murder of John the Baptist and the cause of it. Tidings of the mighty works done by Jesus and His followers had reached the ears of King Herod, and he was perplexed and thought that John must be risen from the dead. Others said, "It is Elijah," and still others said, "It is one of the old prophets risen again." Herod said, "John have I beheaded, but who is this of whom I hear such things?" (Luke ix, 7-9.) It is said that he desired to see Him, and when just before His crucifixion Pilate sent Him to Herod, who was in Jerusalem at that time, it is written that he was exceedingly glad, for he was desirous to see Him of a long season, because he had heard many things of Him, and he hoped to have seen some miracle done by Him (Luke xxiii, 8). Herod's question, "Who is this?" is one of the greatest of all questions. We find it in Jer. xxx, 21, in connection with His becoming surety for His people; in Isa. liii, 1, in connection with His coming in judgment; in Luke v, 21, in connection with His forgiving sins, and in Luke vii, 49, also; in Matt. xxi, 10, as He entered Jerusalem the ass' colt. Blessed indeed are all who know Him, not only as Israel's Messiah and the great head of the church and the King of kings and Lord of lords, but as their own personal Saviour, who became surety for them, bore their sins in His own body and has assured them of the forgiveness of their sins. Apart from this personal knowledge of Him as the one who loved me and gave Himself for me (Gal. ii, 20), all else is as nothing.

The record goes on to tell us why Herod had killed John. He had taken Herodias, his brother Philip's wife, to be his wife, and John had told him that it was not lawful to do this. Therefore Herodias had an inward grudge against John and would have killed him if she could (verse 19, margin). But Herod, knowing John to be a just and holy man, heard him gladly and did many things and kept and saved him (verse 20, margin). Thus things went on, Herod knowing and admiring the right, yet doing the wrong, and Herodias a sort of Jezebel to help him in the wrong, and the devil controlling all. What a picture of real life it is, for the devil is still the god of this world, and the world lieth in the wicked one!

Now we have an account of one of the devil's supreme occasions—Herod's birthday and a supper for his lords, high captains and chief estates of Galilee. It must have been a great gathering of the notable people of the land, to which multitudes would consider it an honor to be invited—a kind of Belshazzar's feast on a smaller scale, but with the same spirit of impiety and disregard of God. Oh, how much there is of it today and even among those who are called Christians! But the world is ever the same, whether the ungodly or the religious world, and "all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh and the lust of the eyes and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world." "The friendship of the world is enmity with God" (1 John ii, 15-17; Jas. iv, 4). There would no doubt be royal wine in abundance, according to the state of the king, and the eating and drinking would be according to every man's pleasure (Est. i, 7, 8). There was some special dancing also, and the daughter of Herodias danced so well that the king said unto her with an oath, "Whosoever thou shalt ask me I will give it thee unto the half of my kingdom" (verses 22, 23). Being instructed by her mother, she asked for the head of John the Baptist in a charger. The king's order must be obeyed, and immediately the executioner does his awful work, and the grudge of the wicked Herodias is gratified as she obtains possession of the head of him she so hated for daring to rebuke her sin. Naboth's death at the hands of Jezebel or by her command was somewhat on the same line of things, as far as the death of the innocent and unoffending to please the wicked was concerned. But the great murderer has been at work ever since he caused the death of Abel, and he is not through yet. Those who are willing to do his work cannot complain if some time they share his doom in the lake of fire prepared for the devil and his angels. It was a wretched birthday for Herod, and we saw at the beginning of our lesson that he could not forget his part in the murder of John. He has not forgotten it yet, for we conclude from Luke xvi, 25, that memory plays a very important part in the torment of the lost. Although it seemed hard for John to be thus taken off the earth, it was in reality a good day for him, for he had the gain, the very far better of Phil. i, 21, 23, and he has been well and happy ever since, and the glory of the kingdom still awaits him. His disciples buried his body, but John was not at the burial. It has long been a comfort to me to consider that if the Lord does not come while I live and this mortal body shall some day be buried I will not be at the funeral, but absent from the body, present with the Lord.

A TURKEY BLACKHEAD POST-MORTEM.

Let us open a dead turkey and see if internal conditions confirm our diagnosis that it died of blackhead. But first the external symptoms. Victim was normal at night, morn; no appetite; ruffled feathers; great thirst; lagged behind; dropped yellow, slimy excrement. Then high fever, progressive emaciation, violent diarrhea, exhaustion, death in ten days.

READY FOR POST-MORTEM—KNIFE SHOWS WHERE TO CUT.

Now for post-mortem. We bare breast, cut in at front of breastbone, break connection and draw breastbone down and uncover abdomen.

Our first objective is the caeca—two pouches that spring from union of large and small intestines—and we find the telltale swelling, inflammation and yellow fluid, symptoms of blackhead.

Next, liver is oversized, ulcerated, mushy. Blackhead symptom No. 2. Other organs are normal.

Data from this and other cases. Blackhead is progressive, though first symptoms are violent, and an immediate post-mortem shows caeca and liver so affected that treatment seldom avails.

The micro-organism, swallowed in filth, first attacks caeca; they swell, thicken and fill with yellow, blood streaked fluid.

Parasite next seeks liver, which enlarges, becomes soft, gorged with blood and marked with cuplike yellow or brownish ulcers.

These organs are mainly affected. head seldom turns black.

Disease especially attacks poults from two weeks up, most common in midsummer, runs course from one to six weeks, according to age and stamina, and victims seldom recover.

Parasite is picked up in droppings, and disease is inevitable where there are filth, inbreeding, immature breeders, feeding excess carbohydrates and yarding of turkeys and chickens together.

To stamp out blackhead breed from new, strong stock on new ground and follow nature.

Want Long Hair?

And you would like long hair? Rich, heavy hair? Beautiful, luxuriant hair? That is perfectly natural, and we are here to help you. Ayer's Hair Vigor is a great aid to nature in producing just the kind of hair you desire. Do not be afraid to use it. No danger of its coloring your hair. The ingredients are all given on each label, thus enabling your doctor to wisely advise you concerning its use. Consult him freely. He knows.

Classical Music. "What is your idea of classical music?" "Well," replied Mr. Cumrox, "I don't profess to know much about it. But it always seems to me that when a man writes classical music he simply takes a tune and sees how much he can muss it up."

The Value of Good Manners. Manners must adorn knowledge and smooth its way through the world. Like a great rough diamond, it may do very well in a closet by way of curiosity, and also for its intrinsic value; but it will never be worn, nor shine if it is not polished.

HELP THE KIDNEYS

Gazette Readers Are Learning The Way.

It's the little kidney ills—The lame, weak or aching back—The unnoticed urinary disorders—That may lead to dropsy and Bright's disease.

When the kidneys are weak, Help them with Doan's Kidney Pills.

A remedy especially for weak kidneys.

Doan's have been used in kidney troubles for 50 years.

Endorsed by 30,000 people—endorsed by citizens of this locality.

Mrs. William Adams, Clarence St., Hyndman, Pa., says: "I willingly confirm all I said about Doan's Kidney Pills when I publicly recommended them two years ago. They were used in my family in a case of kidney trouble and backache and they effected a permanent cure. Since then this remedy has been taken off and on and it has always acted promptly and satisfactorily."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other. Aug. 30-2t.

Mental Diseases.

Fear and apprehension make people nervous and sick. The thousand and one needless worries over the future are simply providence for the morrow gone mad. Fear of disease and death are normal; but to allow the mind to dwell on these things is to become a hypochondriac with no more stability than the leaf of the aspen.

THE OLD APPLE ORCHARD.

The old apple orchard, the lovely old orchard. Oh, who can forget its wide spreading trees. Its blossoms in springtime, its ruddy checked apples. Its grasses, its robins, its bluebirds and bees?

How cool was the shade as I lay in its shadow. How sweet the perfume! Its vistas—how fair! The birds in the bowers all singing sweet carols. What harmony reigned, what freedom from care!

The squirrels gayly played in the boughs right above me. The orioles flashed from tree unto tree. The thrushes were warbling from bough and from fence row. And everywhere sounded the hum of the bee.

How often I climbed to pluck the red apples. The mellow ones up in the top of the tree! How often I mused with my head 'gainst a tree trunk And wondered what fruit life would bear for me!

And as I looked round on that fruitful old orchard The blossoms said "Hope!" and the breeze said to me, "Grow up straight and grand like this lovely old orchard And thou shalt bear fruit and all shall praise thee."

PNEUMONIA AMONG POULTRY.

Pneumonia often kills a fowl so quick the average poultry raiser is mystified. Note the symptoms. Fowl stands with head back and mouth open, ruffled plumage, breath is quick and hot, head feverish, nostrils discharge yellow, blood streaked mucus, there is constipation and great thirst.

There are two kinds, broncho and croupous. In the first bronchial tubes are mostly affected, being choked up with mucus, and this form is more easily cured.

In the second a post mortem shows lung tissue affected, air cells filled with a yellow bloody liquid thrown off by blood vessels, and the lung solid like liver.

A normal lung is bright red, spongy and floats. In croupous pneumonia lung is dark, hard and sinks.

The cause is a chill from drafts, in halation of foul air, damp, disturbance of blood circulation, bacteria.

To discover in time for treatment the poultryman must "stop, look and listen," as disease quickly develops and fowl soon collapses. Isolate victim and administer a tablespoonful of cast tor oil to relieve constipation and give a drop of tincture of aconite every two hours. Make tea of a pint of boiling water and an ounce of flaxseed and keep before fowl. One grain of quinine per day will hasten recovery.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

Ten thousand loons that pass the winter in the warm water about San Diego, Cal., at the approach of spring arose in a body and flew north. We have often wondered where all the northern loons come from.

Los Angeles, Cal., has a band of chicken thieves called "the colored combs" for the collection of choice chickens. They recently stole a lady's chickens, her blankets and even her underwear.

Poultry legislation is becoming a common thing in our state legislatures and we remind any legislator who is backward in support of poultry culture that the great and only American hen just brings to the national treasury one billion per year, and that reason enough for passing laws for her advancement.

A small water fowl called the booby inhabits seven little islands southeast of Jamaica. It is very prolific, and 60,000 dozen booby eggs were gathered last year. The eggs are about two-thirds the size of a hen's egg and sell for about 6 cents per dozen. The booby bird is extremely dumb, as its namesake the human booby bird.

That great egg specialist, the single comb White Leghorn, has become so popular in New Zealand that the meat breeds are nearly crowded out and dressed meaty fowls sell at a premium.

Separating cock birds from their mates for any length of time is a practice not repeated by those who try it. The rooster drops his tail, loses the fighting spirit, ceases to crow, cackles like a hen and is good for nothing but the cook pot.

The old slat corner crib is gradually being replaced by the wire screen crib set upon concrete piers that the rats can't climb. Rats and mice certainly do eat and spoil a lot of corn in that old time granary and crib, and the farm hen eats till she's as fat as butter.

The Value of Lightning Rods
During the electric storms of the summer a number of buildings were struck and damaged more or less by lightning.

Last week the Bedford public school building was struck and damaged to some extent, but fortunately was not burned.

The Court House and jail were recently rodged by the Maryland Lightning Rod Company so that the county officials and inmates of the jail are protected. The school building had been rodged but the connections are no longer in fact. What should be done for the protection of the boys and girls who attend the Bedford schools as well as all other schools in the county? Aug. 30-11

The Everett Home Bakery's "Taffy" cinnamon rolls are great.

Valuable Property to Be Sold
One of the properties to be sold by the Sheriff here tomorrow is the Bazaar Hotel and store building at Osterburg. The reason for this is the owner's inability to pay a judgment of $1,000 which became unexpectedly due through the death of a creditor. To the ordinary business man this would have been but a mere incident. It is such a very desirable property, centrally located in a live village in a good community with an established hotel and business patronage that it has long been coveted. Envious persons have by misrepresentation made it hard to secure a duplicate loan and thus forced it on the bargain counter. The size of the building is 63x72 feet, 3 stories, with slate roof, and good cellar under the entire building; is well constructed throughout and suitable for most any business. The indebtedness of the present owner is but a small part of the value of the property. Aug. 30-11

OWN YOUR HOME

It is possible and it is worth the effort to own your own home. The way lies in ordinary thrift and a little self-denial. But the satisfaction is more than ordinary, and the pleasure to the family now and in later remembrance is not little.

HECKERMAN LETTER

Salesman Making Western Trip—Tells of Old Acquaintance.

East Liverpool, O., August 27.

Whilst I am out here in the Buckeye State among the potteries, my mind goes back to the "Quaker City" and I want to tell your readers something of the Weir family. I only know the father and two of the boys and I am loath to say that I do not know the father's first name, but that makes no difference in this case.

Mr. Weir, senior, is in his eightieth year, has never been ill, walks now in all kinds of weather two miles to his work and two home in the evening. He has been married over sixty-five years, has raised a large family and has about two score grandchildren. Now in the sixty-fifth year of married life, he has never lost a child or grandchild. His prayer for over fifty years has been that he might live to see his children grow up and have money to give each an education, all of which has been answered, but he still prays for all, he has been making candy for A. C. Kelley for thirty years and has made the long four-mile walk daily, save Sunday, all these years.

His pets in the candy room are co co taffy and butter blocks, and with his help they turn out many of these, for Mr. Kelley has fifteen men on the road and you may judge that they do some business for he recently ordered eight hundred boxes of salted peanuts from the Heckermans.

One of his sons, Charles, has been buying goods for Mr. Kelley for over twenty years—not such a bad record. He always knows a good thing when he sees it and is constantly believing that when the good old common sense way of doing things gets a set-back, one should go to work with break-neck speed and bull dog tenacity trying to originate something new. Charley often thinks that we frequently find ourselves eventually back on the old job, kicking ourselves for our foolishness in not being satisfied and willing to let well enough alone.

We all know that success cannot be secured by ordering it. Even if your credit is good, you have to go for it and pay cash. However, luck will some time provide us with success just to spite our efforts.

A little bit of court gossip comes to me and it may be a warning to some.

A young judge of a certain district in the South was sorely vexed by the great amount of the time of his court that was taken up by hearing negro divorce cases. So when the case of Lucinda Johnson versus Lige Johnson was called up, he recognized in the person of the colored lady one of the tenants on a place of his. He asked what the trouble was between she and Lige. "Taint no use, Jedge," she replied, "I gess amaclay, can't lib wid dat niggah. He busses me and cusses me scanious." Well knowing the great fondness of the negro for scriptural quotations and thinking Lucinda might recognize the origin of it, he asked, "Have you ever tried heaping 'coals of fire on his head?" "Nossir, nossir, I ain't neber done dat, but," she added rather thoughtfully, "I done bust er skillet ober his head, but hit hain't done one particle of good, Jedge. Not one bit."

Yours truly,
M. P. Heckerman.

Walnut Grove Campmeeting

The Walnut Grove Campmeeting of 1912 was a decided success, viewed from all standpoints. Financially it was the best year in the history of the camp. Meetings were well attended and spiritual and four persons were converted. There was never better order on the ground. Three members of the State Police were in attendance—one in citizens clothes and two in uniform. These trained men, accustomed to handling crowds, men who are not looking for trouble but who are ready for it when it comes, were able to keep order on the ground and also to give the parties who had made a practice of handling whiskey near the campground a good scare—enough to make them stop the selling.

The Association held a meeting Thursday evening, August 15, and re-elected all the former officers for the year 1912-1913. Rev. F. W. McGuire of Saxton was unanimously re-elected General Manager. He has served as manager of the camp for the past six years. The recent successful meeting has shown the correctness of his plans and methods of conducting a campmeeting and the future of the camp is now assured.

The Campmeeting Association will meet at Grange Hall, Maddensville, Monday, September 16, at 7:30 p. m.
